[For the Idaho World.]
To an Absent Brother.

What shall a sister wish for thee, Oh brother, with the dark smooth hair?
Shall life with thee be all July,
With no December storms or care?
Ah! brother, 'tis a useless thought, I dare not wish thy life thus bright,
And what so'er He will, is right.

I ask not that a laurel crown, May wreath thy young proud head; Full many a one has gained the prize And found it thorns instead; I ask not for the glittering wealth,
'Tis vain to stay the angels' dart, It cannot link life's shattered chain Around a pulseless heart.

But may your life-bark gently glide Mid scenes of care and strife; It's pilot guide it from the rocks Upon the sea of life;
And like fair Ruth, (the gleaner girl) Take bravely up the cross;
And gather all the golden grain, But leave the tares and dross.

That when the Reaper's song is heard Within his harvest field:
You calmly may await his call,
Your gathered grain a shield;
And in the garner of our God, May you with angels reign, Forever where the Father's smile Rests on his golden grain.

DIE VERNON.

FROM HOG'EM.

SIMON-SAYS-UP!

TO THE WORLD: SIR—"Stream of Time" near this Eldorado of nature, occasionally lifts a modest salutation to the World we live in. Go where you will up and down, our banks and sleepy waters you find no Bank Teller. We keep our books from the sluice-box, and Sunday morning pay to the laborer his rightful due.

Many of our most worthy citizens have left us for the Blackfoot, alias Black Warrior country, and ere this is published many more will be off, "without the aid of the best Government in the world." We all say in our hearts, God speed thee in your perilous journey.

You may visit any of the mining camps, as I have as a miner, and I think as a general thing, there will be but a few found as lavish in her pay for an indefinite time, as Idaho and her tributaries, and many will yet say "with all thy faults, we love thee still." The placer, combined with the untold wealth of her quartz mines, speak more than I can utter, and he who could estimate their worth would indeed be a bold prophet. The capital invested in new steam machinery, daily arriving for the different mills, give additional testimony of a healthy future—so sir, we are taught to believe, like causes produce like effects. War gives hard tack to its soldiers and hard taxes to its citizens, and vice versa, to those after the wild goose who lays the golden egg. Robinson Crusoe thought, if he had contented himself in the middle stages of life, no shipwreck would have befallen him.

Most of the miners on Grimes' Creek, are working hard and in earnest, and receive remunerative pay. The hills and gulches are as good as when trod over by the bold pioneers.
Water has somewhat failed, but not as much as in your section, for several companies are yet at work. If space would permit I might particularize. We cannot get all the gold in a day, month, or year, as Deity has so mysteriously shaped it that our children and children's children must be protected.
The hog, an emblem from which we bear our name, is a glutton. He in return does good by feeding back that which was cast off and forever lost in charity to mankind. Mahomet would not go to the mountain, because the mountain would not come to him. You can cite a good puritan christian going after his hog and molasses, that even barbaric Africans or Asiatic Mahomedans detest, and are by religion ordered not to eat. Truly the ways of the heathens are many and untold.
"Ask and ye shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto you," and every hard knock with the pick only adds substantial evidence.
The first ball of the season came off on the evening of the 8th, for the renewal of that good feeling cemented by occasions of the past. The boys here are quite fond of the ladies who attended there, and if not out of taste might speak of—but the ball did not come off.

"Fleecy caps the matrons wore;
The maiden's auburn hair, In shimmering ringlets, drifted o'er Their necks and shoulders fair."

We as good citizens, have all felt an interest in the affairs of the county, and hope the shadows of the "Mountain Gem" may never be less; and as a stimulus many visited the county seat at Idaho, in the trying occasion of the secessionists and radicals in your midst. We are glad to find that reason swayed. A feeble infant child has its rights to life and property, as well as mighty Sampson. Men should be consistent to their lawful allegiance. Still we find those loudest for such, were the first to set an example that neither law or justice should prevail. The fact established by the war, was that no state, city, town, or individual, can possibly depart from the fundamental law of the land; yet in the recent attempted outbreak, they are the first black sheep to jump over the bars.
Such sophistry would by the same argument induce the poor mariner to throw overboard, his last cask of water and provisions, when out of reach of help on the high seas, and rely on the providence of God. The leopard may change his skin by an artificial coloring, but the spots will never be erased.— Nature still marks the animal with its same sneaky instincts.

In our town of the Hog, we only have Justice Wm. Vance, and John Donovan, who combines both offices as Constable and Deputy Sheriff. To the Judge's mandates we all bow, and to John whose official acts and kindness, square with the ideas of the people, whose confidence he still retains, is getting gray from the hand of time, which is continually reaping around us.

Of our Representatives, we find Parkinson at his saw mill working away, and Looney at the Toll Gate leveling the road, both working with a zeal that shows they are both Democrats in practice as well as principle. They believe the great Architect worked six days a week, and they are content to follow in his path, without looking to the borrowed ideas of Winter Davis, Ben Butler, Mrs. Harriet B. Stowe, Abbey Kelly and old lady Greely upon the rights of reconstruction and the voting of drummer boys, women in men's clothes, and soldiers under age, with the gentlemen of color, because having been soldiers, all setting together as citizens and jurors, and settling justice.
With a piece of pumpkin pie to one, a few steel hoops to others, some cotton and sugar land to another and a little tobacco rot-gut whiskey and red cotton handkerchief, ginger cake and corn cake to the highest among them, and a little printing pap besides. You can rest assured that Parkinson and Looney will put a quietus on the nigger associations.

Probably Ashley of Ohio, the mover in the House of Representatives, of the celebrated constitutional amendment abolishing slavery on the 15th of June, 1864, could enlighten our deluded masses,—or the Freedmen's society, send us missionaries Colfax & Co? The hat should be passed around. The late law firm of Halleck, Peachey, Billings & Parks; they could subscribe a little, as we must import chickens a long way in the mountains at much expense to feed the missionaries upon. It may be the sages of Washig-ton, thought Ashley, Colfax & Co. were the only scientific miners at the paladium of liberty, who suffered the poor bare-foot pioneer, without the aid of a magnanimous government—except building Forts in settled parts where they were not wanted—to explore the mountains and streams, living upon flap-jacks and rusty bacon, competent to so stupendous a task? It may be that a little millage and per diem, and the gentlemen's mutton chops and tallow candles, were something during the hot months, when they had nothing to do, awakened a patriotism, when it was so costly to travel the Territorial wilds, among the uncouth barbarians and report. Perhaps, in the event of Oregon and California, going wrong at their next Legislative elections, the thimble-riggers might be caught in guessing for the ball, and those States not ratify the constitutional amendment, thereby the de-lusions of slavery yet a law of the land—the three fourths of the Legislatures of the States not being obtained, therefore the citizen ship of the negro must wait a little while longer—"he'll come bim' by don't let his parting grieve you" An extra session of the Legislatures of those States must be had, so—h—l will be to pay and sinners turned out of church.

The giving of a fee simple right to the discoverers of mines, as is proposed by Ashley, Colfax & Co. is not wanted and is only a flap-trap—this they already possess. Mining rules and regulations have fixed that fact years ago. But all at once a discovery is made that such protection and guarantee titles are wanted.

I have written this more lengthy than I desired.
I hope not to indulge in any personal feelings towards the honorable gentlemen, but as public men I must have the poor boon of canvassing the intentions of the visitors. If my suppositions are wrong, no harm is done, and we may be the better protected and our rights better respected than in the past. But if right.

"The gun well aimed at duck or plover, May rebound and knock its owner over."

There has been many intricacies and paths of life and none more so than among our mountain fastnesses and her golden treasure. The hawks are after the sparrows but the mountain eagle catches the hawk. Gravitation is said to be the command of God," but in my opinion gold is the center and to which the so-called Republican or Union party yields periodical visits and obedience.
JUDGE HOG'EM.

A Witch, being at the stake to be burnt, saw her son there, and desired him to give her some drink, "No, mother," said he, "it would do you wrong, for the drink you are the better you will burn."

In spite of all that parifanical people say against dancing, it is unquestionably a merry-toe-rious arrangement.

One drop of Spirits of Hartshorn will instantly remove the pain caused by the sting of a bee, wasp or hornet, so they say.

Loves in a cottage is all very well when you own the cottage, and have plenty of money at interest.

The entire population of all the States and Territories on the Pacific, belonging to Uncle Sam, is 675,000.
